The book of songs

the Turtle Doves Tweeting
—Included in the Book of Songs

关关雎鸠，
The turtle doves tweeting,
在河之洲。
On the bank of the river.
窈窕淑女，
The charming virtuous girl,
君子好逑。
is adored by the noble mister.

The Book of Songs is the beginning of ancient Chinese poetry, the earliest poetry collection, collected from the 11th century BC to the 6th century BC, a total of 311 poems.

It is the image reflection of Chinese social life in the five hundred years from the rise and fall of Zhou Dynasty, including the praise of ancestors' achievements and the music of offering sacrifices to ghosts and gods; There are also aristocratic contacts, feelings for life; There are also moving chapters on labor, hunting, and a large number of love, marriage, and social customs.

Poetry of the Tang Dynasty

Evolution of Chinese poetry style

The evolution of Chinese poetry can be traced back to the appearance of "wind" and "elegance" in the Book of Songs, and later evolved into the lyric poetry represented by Qu Yuan's Li SAO. Subsequently, this poetic tradition, known as Fengsao, was further transformed into a five-character style during the Western Han Dynasty. With the arrival of the early Tang Dynasty, Chinese poetry underwent another evolution and was transformed into a variety of songs. Fengsao embodies a free, free-spirited style, while Tang poetry adopts a more structured poetic form that reflects the dynamic evolution and diversity of Chinese poetic expression.

曾经沧海难为水，除却巫山不是云。

取次花丛懒回顾，半缘修道半缘君。

No water's enough when you have crossed the sea;

No cloud is beautiful but that which crowns the peak.

I pass by flowers that fail to attract poor me.

Half for your sake and the half for Taoism I seek.

Rejuvenated, I my fiery zeal display;

On left hand leash, a yellow hound,

On right hand wrist, a falcon grey.

A thousand silk-capped, sable-coated horsemen sweep

Across the rising ground

And hillocks steep.

Townspeople pour out of the city gate

To watch the tiger-hunting magistrate.

Heart gladdened with strong wine, who cares

About a few new-frosted hairs?

When will the court imperial send

An envoy to recall the exile? Then I'll bend

My bow like a full moon, and aiming northwest,

I Will shoot down the fierce Wolf from the sky.

Facing the Sea With Spring Blossoms

From tomorrow on, I will be a happy man.
Grooming, chopping and traveling all over the world.
From tomorrow on, I will care foodstuff and vegetable.
Living in a house towards the sea, with spring blossoms.
From tomorrow on, write to each of my dear ones.
Telling them of my happiness.
What the lightening of happiness has told me.
I will spread it to each of them.
Give a warm name for every river and every mountain.
Strangers, I will also wish you happy.
May you have a brilliant future!
May you lovers eventually become spouses!
May you enjoy happiness in this earthly world!
I only wish to face the sea, with spring blossoms.

THANKS
